Walt Disney

Walt Disney was a pioneer of the Hollywood animated movie industry who is remembered for the charming cartoon mouse, Mickey Mouse, along with other much-loved characters such as Donald Duck, Goofy, and Pluto. Disney achieved great success due to tenacity, imagination and use of technical innovations. In 1937, he released Snow White and the Seven Dwarves – the first feature-length animated movie to be in full color and sound. The movie had several years to complete, and cost far more to make Disney had estimated, but it was instant commercial and critical success. More successes followed with iconic animated movies Fantasia, Dumbo and Pinocchio. Walt Disney's company a number of setbacks in the 1940s, but the 1950s the studios were once again producing animated features such as Peter Pan, Sleeping Beauty and 101 Dalmatians. In 1968, the studios released Mary Poppins, which features a mix of live action and animation, and which was the last movie that Walt Disney produced.

Nowadays, Disney's name is as much associated with theme parks as it is with his movies. His theme park Disneyland was opened in California in 1955 and, despite some early problems, became successful with millions of visitors each year. Construction of another entertainment complex, Disney World in Florida, began in the 1960s but unfortunately Walt Disney died in 1968, before the park was open. Today, there are other Disney attractions in Japan, France, China, Hong Kong and Hawaii.
